2026 SUMMER MUSIC FESTIVAL

Audition Guidelines & Information

Composition Intensive

Applicants for the Composition Intensive complete their “audition” by submitting materials to AFA, followed by a conversation with AFA’s Chair of Composition Studies. Here are the steps in this process:

1. Complete an application via the AFA Dashboard (start at www.afatexas.org/apply); you will then receive a link to submit their materials to AFA.
2. The applicant submits their materials within two weeks of receiving the submission link.
3. Once materials have been received, AFA staff will reach out by email to schedule a Zoom call.

Materials to Submit:

- Required: Three notated (written out) examples of work (pieces of music). These should be PDFs of music created using notation software (such as MuseScore, NoteFlight, Finale, Sibelius, Dorico, etc.) or, if you hand write your music, scan or take clear photos of your pages.
- Optional but encouraged when possible: Recordings of any of your work. This may include recordings of live performances, digital realizations (like MIDI files created in Finale), or a mix of both. These may be actual audio files and/or links to videos on YouTube, streaming sites, etc.

Frequently Asked Questions

Some of the work I have isn’t really a big, full piece/is unfinished. Is that okay?

Yes! Submit whatever current music you have, even if it is in progress. The goal is for us to see where you are as a composer, your growth so far, and your writing interests.

Are there any rules or guidelines for my recording files and links?

Please make sure that privacy settings for sharing sites (like Google Drive or Dropbox) are set to “public” and that any streaming links do not require the reviewer to have an account with that site.

Do I need to play any of my music for my Zoom call?

No; We will have an informal chat about your composing process and your general experiences and goals as a musician.
